Order directly from gobrain.com for different quantities! What if children's books were based in science? Research shows that the best way to raise smart children is not tell them they're smart. Inspired by the popular mindset idea that hard work and effort can lead to success, Making A Splash is the first of its kind type of story. The book has a fun story for kids and a nonfiction part for parents. Children fall into one of two categories: Fixed and Growth. Some children have what psychologists call a Fixed Mindset. They think they only have a fixed amount of intelligence. When they try something new and fail, they're embarrassed because they think it proves they aren't smart enough. Other children have a growth mindset. They realize that it's not about how smart you are today, but about how smart you can become. They value learning over looking smart. These kids understand that even geniuses must work hard. People are held back more due to their mindset than their actual capability. The best way to learn is through stories and examples. So I spent the past year figuring out methods to encourage the growth mindset. 30 pages of story + 14 pages for parents about growth mindset.
