Against Her Rules (Heart's Ease Book 1) By Victoria Barbour

Elsie Walsh had it all. Or so she thought. Until Scottish hunk Campbell Scott showed up on the doorstep of her bed and breakfast. He's making it pretty hard for her to stand by her one rule: No sleeping with the guests. She's denied some of the world's hottest actors, musicians, and even royals... but how can she keep Cam out of her bed, when he's invaded her head and her heart?

Campbell Scott went to the wilds of Newfoundland with one thing on his mind: sketch some birds, and then get back to his playboy lifestyle in London. But one look at his sexy hostess and there's a whole lot more in the air than sea birds. Rejection isn't part of his vocabulary, and Cam sets out to not only convince Elsie that he belongs in her bed, but by her side at the Heart's Ease Inn.

About the Author

A USA Today bestselling author, Victoria Barbour lives on the island of Newfoundland, and is fiercely proud of her home. She can imagine no better setting for her works, and she hopes that her readers will one day come to witness Newfoundland and Labrador's rustic beauty for themselves. When she's not writing, or trying to convince people to visit her home, she's busy with her day-to-day life as a mother, wife, and marketing communications specialist.

Victoria was born in St. John's and raised above her family's fish and chips restaurant. She has travelled and lived in other parts of Canada but chose to make her home where her heart has long resided. Victoria has a degree in history from Memorial University of Newfoundland, with a minor in Newfoundland studies. The only thing that stands between her and a master's degree in history from Simon Fraser University in British Columbia is her thesis. She has a background in broadcast journalism, advertising, and marketing. She is a proud member of several writing organizations, including the Romance Writers of America (RWA); their affiliate chapter, Romance Writers of Atlantic Canada (RWAC); and the Writers' Alliance of Newfoundland and Labrador (WANL).
