Endō Shūsaku: A Literature of Reconciliation (Nissan Institute/Routledge Japanese Studies) By Mark B. Williams

Endō Shūsaku is probably the most widely translated of all Japanese authors. In this first major study of Endō's works, Mark Williams moves the discussion on from the well-worn depictions of Endō as the 'Japanese Graham Greene', and places him in his own political and cultural context.

Editorial Review

Review

"In this book, Mark Williams takes the first focused look in English at the complex and challenging oeuvre of Endo Shusaku, one of the most important of contemporary Japanese novelists. Williams rejects the facile notion that Endo started out skeptical about the possible spiritual meeting of East and West and replaces it with a sophisticated, compelling argument for a process of reconciliation between opposites that is at the core of much of Endo's writing. I find this a refreshing, engaging, and persuasive argument that will allow a new level of understanding of this superb author's work."

-Van C. Gessel, Dean, College of Humanities and Professor of Japanese, Brigham Young University
